

Humberto José Iglesias Gómez

Vice President of Supplies & Shared Services

Certified Public Accountant from EAFIT University, with a specialization in Organizational Control and an MBA from the same institution. He has more than 15 years of experience in various roles in both the public and private sectors, standing out for leading cross-functional teams to optimize operational efficiency and improve the quality of services. His passion for implementing innovative practices and emerging technologies has been key in the modernization of processes in the organizations where he has worked.

His ability to build strong relationships with internal and external stakeholders, including government agencies, suppliers, and civil society, has been instrumental in ensuring successful projects and strategic collaborations. He is characterized by a focus on transparency, integrity, and regulatory compliance at all stages of the procurement cycle, ensuring an ethical and efficient process.

As Vice President of Supply and Shared Services, his primary goal is to foster a culture of innovation and efficiency in all aspects of supply and service management. It seeks to generate a high degree of trust and satisfaction in all areas of the organization, through the design and implementation of strategies that promote operational excellence and continuous improvement.

