

Relevant Information

Medellin, March, 2019

Regarding the information disclosed by mass media about the insurance claim of the Ituango project, EPM clarifies:

Within the scheme of risk transfer that the company has, and as it is natural in this type of infrastructure works, the Ituango project has an all-risk construction and assembly policy with an insured value of USD 2,500 million for material damages and of USD 628 million to cover the business-interruption of the first year of operation of each unit.

Therefore, and as a consequence of the events of the contingency that occurred on April 28, 2018, EPM is advancing the claim before the insurers and reinsurers, to obtain the indemnity that may arise under the insurance contracts.

This information has been disseminated through the reporting mechanism of relevant information and in different scenarios, such as meetings with investors and risk rating agencies, sessions of the Medellin Council, among others.
